POTASH FROM KELP

REV. E. H. WILLISFORD TELLS OF THE INDUSTRY AT CHULA VISTA

"San Diego Exposition is a matter of ancient history by this time," said the Rev. E. H. Willisford, who has just returned from a two weeks' vacation in the border city. "Everybody has seen it and written of it. During my visit to San Diego, while I spent one day at the exposition and admired very much the beautiful grounds and specially the wonderful exhibit of industries sent by Canada, from the San Francisco exposition, I was more interested in the growth of the city itself and in its industries.

"One of the great industries that is doing much and will do still more for the San Diego district is the manufacture of kelp-potash. The Pacific coast is fringed with enormous beds of giant kelp. This kelp contains potash, one of the most valuable products in these days when the German supply of potash, on which this country largely depended, is cut off.

"At Chula Vista, a small community close to San Diego, a complete factory for potash has been erected and fitted up at a cost of $1,000,000. At present this manufactory is running full time and sometimes overtime manufacturing potash for explosives. It is interesting to see the process of gathering the kelp. A huge machine in the nature of a reaper operates under the surface of the ocean, cutting off the giant stems of the kelp. The seaweed then floats to the surface and is harvested by an army of workers.

"This kelp is then conveyed to the factory and cut up by machinery; torn to pieces by other machinery, ground up until the potash contained in it can be extracted by other processes. As this potash is the base of all modern explosives it may be imagined that the factory is busy. The salts contained in the kelp are mainly potassium chlorid and sodium chlorid. Besides being used for explosives the potash is valuable as fertilizer. An enormous quantity is needed every year for fertilizers, for the manufacture of matches, glass and liquid soap. Fifty such plants as that at Chula Vista would be necessary to manufacture enough potash for agricultural purposes alone.

"Chula Vista is a great lemon-growing center. Before the great freeze of 1912 one-seventh of all the lemons produced in the United States was grown there. The value of that crop was $1,250,000. Since 1912 the lemon groves have been gradually struggling back to their normal condition and it is believed that this year while the crop will not be so large as it used to be before 1912 that the vastly increased prices will bring as much profit to the district as in former years. Everywhere more acreage is being planted to lemons. One company this year set out 9000 trees.

"San Diego itself notwithstanding the exposition is dull. The conditions in Mexico and the war in Europe have done great harm to the city by preventing the development expected."

LIBRARY BOARD MEETS

MRS. DANFORD TELLS OF CALIFORNIA LIBRARY ASSOCIATION CONFERENCE

There was an interesting meeting of the Library board, Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock. As far as business was concerned it was all of a routine character. An estimate of the running expenses for the coming year was made up.

The feature of the session was the report given by Mrs. Danford, the librarian, of the Twenty-first Annual Conference of the California Library association, which met at Santa Cruz, July 21-26. The librarian said that the conference was well attended, most of the principal librarians in California being present and taking part in the proceedings.

Harold L. Lake was president and his address on the practical management of a library was of the most profound interest to all and also of the greatest value. The Symposium was of much value as many different members presented different phases of library management and experience that were enlightening.

At the close of the morning session on Saturday, July 22, the members of the association boarded a special train for the Big Trees. There luncheon was served through the courtesy of the ladies and gentlemen of Santa Cruz. After exploring the groves the ladies and gentlemen returned by a special train in time for an afternoon swim and other recreation.

At other sessions books and bookmaking were handled by Mr. Perham W. Nahl, of the University of California, who talked informingly of "Early Bookmaking and Modern Methods of Illustration." A great deal was said at other sessions of the needs of the small libraries throughout the State in contradistinction to the needs of the big libraries and it was shown that the small libraries were wise in aiming at being guides and directors of the reading of the members.

Mrs. May Dexter Henshall of the California State Library, spoke of the County School and its Library Service. "The School Library Service as a Branch of City Library Work" was the subject taken by Mr. George Bond, principal of Santa Cruz High School.

There was also a practical discussion of various problems concerning small libraries and much interesting information was obtained in the Trustees' section presided over by Mr. Guy C. Miller, trustee of the Palo Alto public library. The whole subject of library administration was taken up and thoroughly exploited.

Mr. Perry of Los Angeles was chosen president elect and Miss Casey of Los Angeles was elected secretary for the ensuing session. The next regular California Library association session will be held at Riverside. This gathering is of local interest as the North usually provides the State officers and hitherto has been able to retain the annual meeting in its own section.

MOVE INTO THEIR GLENDALE HOME

P. C. Macabee of Los Angeles, who is just completing a beautiful 5-room residence at 721 W. Ninth street, moved in with his wife and baby daughter on Thursday of this week. Mr. Macabee is a general contractor and has constructed his home according to the latest idea in modern building, the house being as near fireproof as possible. The walls are of hollow tile, plastered and covered with crushed marble, the roof is of red crushed brick and all metal lath is used. Mr. Macabee is specializing in houses of this construction and has erected his own as a sample of what may be constructed in a practically fire-proof house at a reasonable cost.

DO GLENDALE MEN LACK PATRIOTISM?

DEAR EDITOR NEWS:

A person from Chicago tells me that at a band concert given here at Brand boulevard, Friday evening two weeks ago, when the Star Spangled Banner was played at the close, not a hat went off. At the Exposition at San Diego last week I heard the Tomafinno band play the Star Spangled Banner several times and always every man removed his hat. Are Glendale men less patriotic or well bred or thoughtful than men of other towns? A. M. L.

GERMAN ATTACKS ON FRENCH GAINS FAIL

REPEATED TEUTON COUNTER ATTACKS NORTHEAST OF VERDUN DRIVEN BACK WITH ENORMOUS LOSS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

PARIS, Aug. 4.—Infuriated by the French recapture of Fleury and the whole system of organized defenses from the southeast of Thiaumont to the Froide Terre ridge, the Germans launched a series of counter attacks this morning in massed formation. They were driven back again and again with enormous losses. The fighting is still going on. The Germans have lost all their gains of Tuesday and a large quantity of war material and guns as well as 1500 prisoners. Froide Terre is a position on which the Germans laid great value and they are certain to continue their efforts to recapture it.

No trace of the German subsea freighter was to be seen today. Captain Nowell of the steamship Southland, which arrived at Baltimore today, stated that he believed there were oceangoing fighting submarines off the Capes for the protection of the submarine freighters.

GOVERNMENT MAY OPERATE RAILROADS

PRESIDENT WILSON PREPARES APPEAL TO WARRING ELEMENTS IN THE RAILWAY DISPUTE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 4.—It is quite possible that the United States government may step in and take control of the railways which are threatened with a general strike. Preparations are being made to carry out this course of action. President Wilson is preparing an appeal to the railroads and to the brotherhoods. He is anxious that they should submit to mediation. The Board of Mediation and Conciliation is collecting information regarding conditions which are said to have brought on the strike. It has been suggested here that the government should seize and operate all the railroads in the country in the event of a strike.

ONE HUNDRED ITALIANS KILLED BY TEUTONS

LONDON, Aug. 4.—It is estimated that 100 Italian men, women and children were drowned when a Teuton submarine torpedoed the Italian steamer Letimbro. The submarine fired many shots at the Letimbro, as she gave chase to that vessel. Finally as the submarine came up the passengers were being lowered into the boats. The submarine opened fire on the boats and sent the women and children to the bottom. Only three boats managed to get to land, as far as known.

The city manager made a statement in regard to the application of Mr. Bullock for a permit to conduct a dairy on Lot 4, Verdugo Estate,

HIKE TO MT. WHITNEY

MISS EULA RICHARDSON CLIMBS HIGHEST PEAK IN THE UNITED STATES

"Mt. Whitney, the highest peak in the United States, has a great attraction for all mountain climbers," said Miss Eula Richardson, who has just returned from a "hike" to the summit of that wonder of the High Sierra. "I have always wanted to climb Mt. Whitney and was therefore delighted when I was informed by the Sierra club, of which I am a member, that the 'hike' for this summer would be to the top of that pride of California and the United States.

"We left for the trip July 1 and were 29 days on the way. We took the train from Los Angeles to Springville. There we took the trail, which led us through some of the most wonderful scenery in the United States. Up the Tule river and over the Tule-Kern divide the company went. There were 200 of us. Everything was packed on muleback—cooking utensils, provisions, sleeping bags. All arrangements were made for day marches and night halts. All the way we had the finest of weather. It was quite remarkable there was not a single day of rain.

"From the Tule-Kern divide we arrived at the Little Kern lake region. Then we went up the Kern river for thirty miles, through Glacier canyon. Thence we ascended to the Chagotta plateau and to Moraine lake; thence to the summit of Kaweah; thence back to the canyon and on to Crabtree meadows. This is on the Kings river watershed. From Crabtree meadows we made the ascent of the peak.

"Words fail to describe the varied trail. The region surrounding Mt. Whitney has as superb landscapes and commanding views as any other center on the face of the globe. It far surpasses even the famed Yosemite. Some of these days crowds of tourists will flock to this wonderful region. Mt. Whitney, the dome of the United States, is surrounded by countless peaks with altitudes very little lower.

"After a brief stay on the mountain the party went over the crest of the peak and along the new "John Muir" trail, which was cut last year, through the center basin to Kings River canyon, and thence through Kearsarge pass to Independence, the county seat of Inyo county, and thence by train to Los Angeles.

"This trip probably covered more than 400 miles. We were greatly struck by the abundance of beautiful wildflowers that carpet the mountains. In Crabtree meadows the profusion of wildflowers was most remarkable. All along our trip we enjoyed excellent troutfishing. The mountain streams are full of trout and most of our party were expert anglers. In this way we were always provided with an abundant supply of fish.

"Nothing could be more enjoyable than a trip of this kind. Miss Lorraine Mitchell of Kenneth road accompanied me on this long 'hike' and she, like myself, enjoyed every moment of the journey. The pace was never too much for either of us as we were both in excellent condition for mountain climbing."

BIRTHDAY PARTY

A birthday party was held last evening at the home of W. F. Tower, 427 Everett street, in honor of the 16th birthday of his daughter, Grace F. Tower. It was a complete surprise to her when her young friends arrived. Music, games and refreshments made a pleasant evening an event to be remembered. Numerous gifts were made of articles appreciated by a young lady who has arrived at this important age. The following young folks were present, sixteen in number, one for each year: Jessie Parrett, Olive Parrett, Doris Reaser, Elizabeth Cook, Lorene Colcord, Winea Simpson, Dorothea Wheeler, Marjorie Kimlin, Beatrice M. Tower, Grace F. Tower, Eugene Wheeler, George Wheeler, De Witt Wheeler, Charles Frank, Donald Wheeler, Robt. B. Tower.

Fred Wilkinson, who was seriously injured some time ago, by having his arm drawn into the wheels of a printing press, is recovering nicely at the Mission hospital. His arm has been saved and he will be able to use it to some extent.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Clotworthy, 150 W. Tenth street, who have been making occasional trips lately to Santa Anita Canyon, are planning to go there Monday. They intend to build a summer cabin amid the delightful surroundings of that charming spot.

POTENT FACTORS FOR PEACE

There are various influences at work to bring an end to the war. The fighting has entered on its last stage. These elements are—financial, economic and food. It is self evident that most of the European countries are approaching a limit of impossible taxation after the war, to pay the interest on the money now being so freely borrowed under the influence of patriotic fervor. Belligerent statesmen have entered on the third year of the war with serious financial misgivings that will probably stimulate interest in peace as new borrowings of billions becomes necessary.

It is practically certain that in some of the warring nations, thinly disguised socialistic seizures of property will be made, to pay the war bills, even though the war were not to last a day longer. If peace continues to elude the grasp of the world far into the third year of the war there will be few countries that in the end will be able to avoid widespread confiscation.

A year ago Winston Churchill, one of Britain's most advanced thinkers on practical and international subjects, said that the war would ultimately be a question of the longest purse. It is proving so now. Economically the two years of warfare have not been disastrous for the principal belligerents. The working class everywhere in Europe has benefited by higher wages, higher than the increased cost of living. The dispatch of so many million men to the front and the use of so many millions more in the munitions factories have caused a scarcity of ordinary labor in Europe. There has been a general distribution of wealth among the working people.

It is the central empires that are most certain to feel the economic strain after the war is over, because their supply of raw materials is rapidly becoming exhausted. The Allies have been able to import raw materials continuously during the war, while Germany and Austria have had to live on their reserves. How to purchase raw materials from abroad in sufficient quantities to provide for the millions of Teuton soldiers returning to workshops and factories after peace has been declared, will present a serious problem for Berlin and Vienna to solve. If the Russian armies reach the fields of Hungary and Galicia before the August harvest is over the Teutons may yet feel the serious pinch of national starvation.

EXECUTION OF SIR ROGER CASEMENT

If anything is wanted to show the tension of feeling in England at the present moment it can be found in the execution of Sis Roger Casement. There is no doubt that Casement merited his death according to the law of nations governing high treason. Had he been a citizen of almost any other European country he would not have been accorded anything more than a courtmartial such as condemned the insurgents in Ireland. As he was Sir Roger Casement he had the privilege of being tried by the Courts of England, if that is a privilege. His connections in high life worked hard to save him from the death penalty, but the shortsightedness of the British officials was against him.

Casement was a very poor kind of rebel. He had enjoyed British favor and patronage and had received consideration and promotion throughout his diplomatic career at the hands of the government. He was a government employe and had eaten the bread of the government and was in the enjoyment of a pension. His conduct in plotting against the country that had fed and sheltered him all his life was a piece of ingratitude that is extraordinary when the history of the man is considered. Nevertheless British officialdom made a grave mistake when they executed him.

Alive and in prison with a life sentence Casement might have been pointed to as an example of how the rich and highly connected escaped while the poor and uninfluential were condemned; but that would have died down in a few days. As it is the British officials have made a martyr of Casement. It is just such an end as he desired. The man was full of vanity and indicated that he preferred to be made a martyr. It is pretty certain that his death will be kept before the world for a long time to come.

Of course it is war time and naturally people who have had relatives killed in battle or blown to pieces by Zeppelin bombs are not tenderly inclined toward one who treats with the enemy and betrays his country. It might have been remembered however, how, after the Boer war, King Edward pardoned Col. Lynch, whose life was forfeit; how he gave orders not to arrest Major McBryde, that staunch rebel who appeared also in this recent affair in Dublin. Similar leniency in dealing with these Irish insurgents would have been a wise policy. It would have been asking too much, however, of the British official to expect him to see a day ahead.

A POET'S MESSAGE

Rabindranath Tagore, India's greatest poet, whose mastery of the English language is as remarkable as his mastery of his own, has been visiting Japan, where he finds congenial Buddhist friends and whither he brings a message of peace and goodwill. Tagore is a man of remarkable spiritual experience and depth. His mind pierces far beyond the mist and veil of time and sees things in their eternal relations.

In Japan the great soul of the poet was at first astonished at the cheap imitations of western manners and western morals which had taken the place of the old simplicity and devotion to national ideals. At Shizuoka, a little city about half way between Tokyo and Osaka, Tagore for the first time after his arrival felt at home. There a Buddhist priest, garbed in a simple, flowing garment, with symbolic incense burning by his side waited to greet him. This pleased the simple heart of the poet.

Tagore felt at home in Shizuoka. There he was welcomed by priests, men of letters and princes of the blood, the leading statesmen and publicists of the empire.

This homage shown to a simple poet is not remarkable in the East where knowledge and learning are valued above money and power; where a large section of the community is always leading the life of contemplation. For generations the East has felt and thought and worshipped in its own particular way and this ancient form cannot be cast aside in a moment. Neither would it be the best thing for the world that it should be thus cast aside. The East is certain to have a profound influence in the aspects of modern civilization, giving life to its dead machinery and a heart to its cold expediency.

Hear what this eastern poet has to say: "I cannot help thinking that it is only the divine in man that can perform this miracle of transmuting the old into the new, the weak into the strong, the insult into the glorious victory. That divine in you was born, not in these sordid days of screeching machinery and gigantic selfishness, not amid the blatant lies of statecraft and the smug self-satisfaction of prosperous hypocrisy, but in the dawning of that heoric manhood when heaven came nearer earth and man had faith in his own soul and the soul whose revelation is in the world.

CONSOLIDATION QUESTION

Tomorrow the voters of Tropico will decide if they wish to consolidate their city with Glendale. Glendale will be pleased to have an affirmative vote, providing the Tropico voters see fit to cast such a vote. The question is one of consolidation, and while if the election carries the Tropico city administration gives way to the Glendale administration, it will only be until the next municipal election, and then there may be one or more trustees elected from the Tropico territory. Good timber to fill municipal positions will not be ignored, and will get the support of an intelligent citizenship. Location will not cut any figure when it comes to electing men well fitted for the positions which they seek.

The announcement to the world that Tropico and Glendale have become one municipality, will be understood to mean the existence of community harmony and the result will be that the very best families of Southern California will be seeking homes in a community of peace. Real estate values will increase and the vacant houses will become occupied. It will not be Tropico with a population of 2500 or will it be Glendale with a population of 8000, but it will be a united city with a population of 11,000. As one municipality her citizens can go before the county and State and ask for greater favors and on account of the combined strength be in a position to have the favors granted.

In union there is strength.

Great nations left records which we cannot read, because we do not know their speech. Knowledge becomes outlawed. If a schoolboy today should try to learn his lessons from the textbooks his father used, he would get into difficulties. But love never fails. Of the trinity of graces, faith, hope, and love, love is the greatest. If you love enough, both faith and hope will be born in your heart in time.

"GENIUS HAS GLUE ON ITS HANDS"

Somebody has said that genius has glue on its hands, and will take hold of a marble slab. That is only another way of saying that men succeed, and win renown for themselves, because they will not admit that anything which they have made their goal is impossible for them. They find a way to handle the marble slab to the best advantage. If it is another case of "a message to Garcia," they will manage somehow to find out where Garcia is and how he may be reached.

The Emperor Napoleon is credited with the saying: "Impossible! It is not good French!" To the earnest, persistent worker it is not good in any language in which he is accustomed to express himself. "Possible," better. The true genius finds a way to make what he undertakes possible.

WILLIAMS-WOOD WEDDING

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Wood, 500 East Third street, was the scene of a happy wedding August 1, when their eldest daughter, Miss Hazel E. Wood, became the bride of Mr. Roger J. Williams. A large number of guests were gathered to witness this interesting event in the lives of these young people. Fitting decorations of pink and white were used throughout the house, asters, hydrangeas and plumosis being blended to beautiful effect. At the appointed hour Miss Fannie Edmondson, a beautiful and talented cousin of the bride, began playing Mendelssohn's wedding march and to these entrancing strains the bridal party took its appointed place for the ceremony. Pheceding the principals in the ceremony were little Miss Dixie Wood and Master William Wood, niece and nephew of the bride, who strewed flowers in her pathway, and little Miss Louise Wood, also a niece of the bride, who proudly bore the ring. All three of these tots performed their appointed parts very sweetly. The charming bride was gowned in white Georgette crepe with a dainty veil held in place with sprays of orange blossoms. Her attire was marked with that simplicity which is the keynote of beauty. Rev. George Lehigh, a particular friend of the family and who is pastor of the South Park Baptist church, Los Angeles, read the simple but impressive ring ceremony that united the hearts and hands of Miss Wood and Mr. Williams.

Following the ceremony a dainty wedding repast was served and all showered good wishes upon the newly made husband and wife.

Mr. Williams is a native of India, having been born while his parents were missionaries in that country. He was educated in this country and is a graduate of the University of Redlands and also the University of California. The fact that his college education was the result of his own efforts proves him to be a man of energy and worth. At present he is professor of chemistry in the Hollister, Cal., High School. His bride is a native daughter of California. She is a graduate of the State Polytechnique school at San Luis Obispo, of the University of Redlands and of the Los Angeles State Normal. Her many Glendale friends wish her a long and happy married life.

The out-of-town guests were, Mrs. S. M. Brooks of Ventura, grandmother of the bride; Mrs. A. E. Williams and Mrs. Paul Linsley of Redlands, mother and sister of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Forest W. Wood and children, Louise, Dixie, William and Gordon, of San Luis Obispo; Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Edmondson, Miss Ruth Cringlaw, Miss Fannie Edmondson, Master R. B. Edmondson, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Gordon, Miss Anita Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Wood of Oxnard; Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Thacker and Miss Beryl Thacker of Moorpark; Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Crinklaw of Santa Susana, Mrs. Edna McClure, Highland Park; Rev. and Mrs. George Lehigh, Miss Charlotte Mills, Mrs. S. E. Walker, Miss Cecil Walker, Los Angeles; Mr. Walter Heutschke, Redlands.

The Glendale guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Reed, Mr. James Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Chase, Miss Ethel Chase, Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Chase, Miss E. Bohannon, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Wood, Glen F. Wood, Master Dale T. Wood.

GARDEN SOCIETY PICNIC

All members and friends visiting Griffith Park on Saturday are asked to assemble not later than four o'clock at the main picnic grounds, where a reunion will be held and a meal enjoyed. Every lady is requested to bring a basket luncheon for two. As the fees of the Garden society are so small, 25 cents per annum, it is impossible to provide free transportation to the park. Arrangements, however, have been made with local automobiles to provide cheap transport, and any members arriving at Headquarters, 1111 Broadway, at 1 o'clock on Saturday can be brought to the park and back again at 6:30 for 25 cents round trip.

Mrs. Nanno Woods hopes that some two or three friends with automobiles will offer to take a load of children, members of the Bird and Flower club, to the park at 1 o'clock that afternoon. There are so many people with automobiles running around Glendale from morning till night. Almost every real estate firm owns an auto, and none of them are killed with overwork at the present time. Mrs. Woods herself gives every spare moment for the benefit of the public; if she owned an automobile she would give that too. Can she not find through the columns of the News some few people willing to lend themselves and auto for a half hour on Saturday for sake of the children?

INDIANS INCREASE

The last census shows that there are 17,430 more Indians than there were ten years ago, but there has been much intermarriage, especially with negroes, and this has caused the character of the race to change. There are, of course, fewer full-blooded Indians.

It is said that the Indian has improved his station considerably in the last ten years and the race is well represented in the professions. Some Indians are government officials, some have gained eminence as artists, and two members of the United States Senate and several of the House of Representatives are proud to trace their Indian lineage.

SOLDIERS OF PEACE

The men of the United States Coast and Geodetic have been called our "soldiers of peace." Their work is perhaps the most varied of any in the world. They may be called on to pitch a camp or outfit a vessel; to climb glaciers or break through tropical jungles; to guide vessels through uncharted seas, or lead men along new and strange mountain trails; to measure the forces of the earth's magnetism or sound the waters of the ocean; to map the topography of the land or trace international or State boundaries.

At times it is necessary for the men to pack their instruments and outfits on their backs and climb summits of towering mountains. The packs never weigh less than seventy-five pounds per man.

The Arctic storm in the mountain tops brings its hazards. The work is full of privations cheerfully faced in bitter weather and amid blinding storms.

ALFALFA SEED CROP

In some western districts the alfalfa seed crop is the chief feature of this forage product. Official records show that five years ago as much as sixteen million pounds of alfalfa seed were annually harvested in the western States. The next to the last crop of the season is usually left to stand for seed, though in many instances the seeding is made in rows far enough apart to permit cultivation like that of corn. When seed is the main object, after about three-fourths of the seed pods have turned brown, the mowers begin cutting the hay for the huller. The ordinary yield ranges from two to four bushels per acre, while yields of five or more bushels is not uncommon; and the market price of such seed is usually not less than twelve cents a pound.

Fine words and ringing phrases prompted by ambition or selfishness, may fall agreeably on the ear, but they do not reach the heart.

Knowledge should be the twin brother of love. The education which trains the intellect and neglects the heart is soulless.

Giving without love is a mockery of giving. One may strip himself to the point of beggary for the sake of others, but if love is lacking, the sacrifice is worthless.

Love is modest. It never boasts of what it has done. It is never conceited over the praise it receives.

Love is hopeful. There is no such optimist as your true mother. Other people may be sure that your wayward son is incorrigible, but she never gives up hope.

LA CRESCENTA

Louis Maranville wishes to state through the columns of this paper that the rumors concerning nis coming marriage are false and absurd. When interviewed by a "Progress" reporter he grew indignant and said that he is neither married nor engaged or expects to be. Another bubble bursted!

M. Cookson purchased a bungalow which he has had moved on his ranch on Michigan avenue. Mr. Cookson expects to rent it after he has it fixed up.

The hot weather is ripening the grapes and other fruits in the valley.

Hooper Barry is enjoying a week's vacation which will include trips to Catalina, San Diego and Tia Juana. Leave it to Hooper to have a good time!

Mrs. Scott has had a sink installed in her bungalow, which now makes it a model California "open-air" house. The public is invited to inspect this cozy little house. Those who intend to build will receive many a delightful idea from seeing it.

Mr. Sam Levy of the "L. & L." ranch received another consignment of chickens last Monday. The "L. & L." ranch will soon be one of the largest poultry ranches in the valley.

Leenhouts' and Allen's reservoirs are the most popular places in the valley these hot days. The people appreciate the magnanimity of these ranchers and are taking advantage of every hot day by going in swimming.

CONDITIONS IN THE AIR

In the early days of aviation when aviators took sudden falls for which they could not account, they explained that they had encountered an "air-pocket," but the Smithsonian Institute has investigated the peculiarities of the air and found that there is no such thing as an air-pocket as meant by aviators. These pockets were thought to be either partial vacuums made by some peculiarity of the currents or accumulations of gas so different from air that when the aeroplane entered, it could not accommodate itself to the new conditions quickly enough and began to fall.

The Smithsonian Institution experiments showed the vacuum theory to be impossible, for the simple reason that under all conditions air in the same plane retains the same density. There are currents in the air caused by the wind and by differences in temperature, and some of these currents flow upward and downward, like fountains or cataracts.

In crossing the Hudson River above New York City aviators look for a drop of from 100 to 200 feet and they are seldom disappointed. Those who attempt to fly over the sky-scraper section of cities often run into aerial cataracts, fountains, gusts and eddies, caused by the irregularity in the heights of the buildings, and the difference in the temperature, which is much higher over the city than over the water.

But the danger from air-pockets is disappearing. As a rule the faster the speed of the machine, the less danger there is from this source.

BEAUTIFUL BIRD PROTECTED

Scientific authorities in Queensland, Australia, have for some time expressed concern over the notable decrease in the lyre bird of the locality. So great has been the destruction wrought upon these beautiful creatures that the State has passed stringent laws protecting them until the year 1920.

The fully developed male lyre is one of the most handsome of the forms of bird life of Queensland. With its long neck and stout feet, it is not unlike the peacock in appearance.

SENSE OF SMELL IN INSECTS

A group of scientists have been endeavoring to locate more minutely the sense of smell in insects. The tendency has been to regard the antennae as the organs of smell. Various structures on these have been chosen, but difficulties have been found in the fact that these structures are shut in by cuticle, and that they are absent in some insects.

Spiders, in fact, have no antennae at all, although they can smell. Experiments have shown that the sense of smell cannot possibly be located in the antennae of ants, bees, and wasps, and that most insects breathe by pores on the wings and legs. Each pore has the form of an inverted flask, with a nerve ending exposed to the air. When the pores are covered with vaseline the sense of smell is retarded.

WASTE IN AUTOMOBILES

A high authority in the automobile business estimates that the number of automobiles in use this summer will not be far from 2,750,000 "allowing twenty per cent for cars which will probably go to the junk pile." The estimate that twenty per cent of the 2,100,000 cars licensed in 1915 are going to the junk heap suggests that the waste due to the comparatively short life of the average automobile is very great, but the indications are that it is growing less owing to the simplification in the manufacture of cars and the greater degree of intelligence among purchasers.

The question of how long an automobile is going to give good service, and how much it is going to cost to maintain that service, are paramount problems. There is where the matter of simplicity in motor car design and construction comes in.

THE YOUTH OF ST. AUGUSTINE

Augustine, the most influential of the early church fathers, was born in a town of Numidia in the year 354. His father was a pagan, but his mother, Monica, was a Christian who combined with her nobility of character, a passionate desire for the conversion of her husband and son.

Her prayers in her son's behalf were not answered at once. As he grew to manhood he combined studiousness with a love of profligate pleasure. But in Carthage where he was a student, the dissipation of the students created in him a disgust for this sort of life. He went from Carthage to Rome, and later to Milan as a teacher of rhetoric. He was then in his thirtieth year.

Augustine's great work for the church was in the line of controversial writings. He attacked the prevalent heresies of his time with peculiar earnestness and vigor. His most significant work he called, "The City of God," and it is a profound treatise in vindication of Christianity, at which he worked for over thirteen years. His treatise on the Trinity occupied him for thirty years. His "Confessions" are perhaps his best-known work at the present time. They were written soon after he became bishop and give an intimate picture of his youth, besides revealing the singular purity and devoutness of his later life.

LARGEST CARLOAD

The Pennsylvania Railroad recently carried the largest railway carload in combined weight and size ever moved by rail. It was the 8,000-kilowatt generator of a steam turbine power unit which weighed eighty tons and which, when in place on the car, stood fifteen feet, seven and one-half inches above the rails.

It was shipped from Granville, New York, to Joplin, Missouri, on a new flat car built to carry a load of seventy tons. In order to avoid low bridges and other obstacles it was necessary to send the car by a circuitous route.

and on motion, a permit was granted to conduct a dairy at the present location for thirty days from this date.

The city manager reported that the two railroad companies operating on Glendale avenue between First street and Oakwood street had come to an agreement to use one track jointly, and had made the necessary application to the Railroad Commission.

Trustee Woodberry stated that the water pipe of the Verdugo Canyon Water company underlies the center of the street, and it would appear that the proposed change of tracks, if allowed to cover the center of the street, would necessitate the removal of the water pipe. On motion of Trustee Woodberry, the city manager and city engineer were instructed to take the matter up with the railroad people and request that the track be placed on the west side of the street. On motion of Trustee Woodberry, the city manager was instructed to write to the Railroad Commission stating that it is agreeable to the City of Glendale that the track or tracks on Glendale Avenue north of First street be operated jointly by the two railroad companies as proposed.

The manager of the public service department reported that expenses for repairs on the motorcycle belonging to his department amount to such a sum as to make it absolutely useless to attempt to get further service out of the machine, which has been in use for five years. He recommended the purchase for the department of a Ford automobile, which with credits due the department from the Ford company would make the net cost about $250.00. On motion of Trustee Grist, the manager of the public service department was authorized to make the purchase in accordance with his recommendation, net cost not to exceed $250.00. The motion was unanimously adopted.

The manager of the public service department reported that although the recent hot weather has caused an unusually heavy demand upon the water department, the demand has been satisfactorily met and no complaints have been received in regard to service. He reported further that there would be a raise in the price of pipe to take effect September 1 next and asked authority to advertise for bids on approximately one thousand tons of cast iron water pipe if, upon further investigation, it seems advisable to do so. On motion of Trustee Grist, the city clerk was authorized to advertise for bids upon approximately one thousand tons of cast iron water pipe.

The city engineer presented the deed signed by various property owners of land required for the opening of Penn street, and upon motion of Trustee Grist, the same was received and the clerk instructed to have the same recorded.

On motion of Trustee Jackson the city manager was requested to write to Mr. Shattuck in regarding to the opening of Penn street.

On motion, "Ordinance No. 296, "An Ordinance ordering the opening, widening and laying out of Sycamore canyon road in the manner contemplated in Ordinance No. 295, of the City of Glendale," was ordered to be taken up for third and final reading, and upon being read, was on motion of Trustee Grist unanimously adopted.

On motion, Ordinance Number 297, "An Ordinance ordering the opening, widening and laying out of Eighth street in the manner contemplated in Ordinance Number 294, of the City of Glendale," was ordered to be taken up for third and final reading, and upon being read, was on motion of Trustee Jackson unanimously adopted.

The city engineer reported having written to three different title companies for their price on furnishing the lists of property owners and other parties in interest in connection with the opening and widening of Sycamore Canyon road and of Eighth street, and that no reply had yet been received. On motion of Trustee Grist, it was ordered that the city attorney be reimbursed for expenditures for stenographer and clerical work and supplies in connection with all opening and widening proceedings. The motion was adopted by the unanimous vote of those present.

ECONOMY IN DRESS

In the early summer many public-spirited women of Saint Paul, Minnesota, who have interested themselves in the affairs of the girls of that city, inaugurated the idea of more simple dresses for young women by starting dressmaking contests in the public schools. At the end of the contest fourteen girls, ten from grade schools and four from high-schools, exhibited their handiwork, and eight prizes were awarded. Four points were considered by the judges, namely: Fit, cost, simplicity of design and workmanship.

The results of this idea were not only apparent at commencement time, when nearly all the girls graduating from the high schools wore gowns that were simple and inexpensive, but it is said that hundreds of girls in the city are giving more serious attention to the matter of economy and efficiency in dress. Small cost, however, does not mean that the gowns are of poor material. It means that material is the small part of the price, and that the making, which constitutes the greatest expense, is done quite largely by the girls themselves.

What is the measure of the love we owe to others? It is the measure of what we think is owing to ourselves.—Dean Stanley.
